Q.1 (A) Read the following poem carefully and answer the questions given below it.

Silver Star,
O will you be my mother,
Will you stay with me
    And kiss me in the black night when I cry?
Laughing wind,
I want you for a brother,
Will you play with me
    And tell me stories of the sea and the sky?
Sometimes, O wind,
You know I am lonely
O star, I am afraid
    Of sounds and creeping shadows on the wall
God, they say,
Loves little children, only
I wish that he had made
    Someone to love me and hear me call
Birds and bees
And flowers have one another
The lambkin and the lark
    The grey mouse and the squirrel and the deer.....
Does God Forget
How much I want a mother
To hold me in the dark
    And whisper lovely secrets in my ear?

In 1901, Tagore founded his famous school shantiniketan at Bolpur. This school become a well-known center of education. This school has now become a University and is famous all-over the world as a great seat of learning. Tagore looked like a great Rishi of ancient India with his flowing silvery beard. Mahatma Gandhi rightly called him 'Gurudev'. Tagore's fame spread all-over the world with the publication of the collection of his poems known as 'Gitanjali'. He was awarded the Noble prize for it in 1913. He was the first Indian to get this prize which is given to the world's greatest authors and scientists. It was nearly a lakh of rupees which Tagore used for Vishwa Bharati, his school.

I began to like New York, the racy, adventurous feel of it at night and the satisfaction that the constant flicker of men and women and machines gives to the restless eye. I liked to walk up fifth avenue and pick out romantic women from the crowd and imagine that in a few minutes I was going to enter their lives, and no one would ever know or disapprove. Sometimes in my mind, I followed them to their apartments on the corners of hidden streets, and they turned and smiled back at me before they faded through a door into warm darkness. At the enchanted metropolitan twilight I felt a haunting loneliness sometimes and felt it in others poor young clerks who loitered in front of windows waiting until it was time for the solitary restaurant dinner – young clerks in the dusk, wasting the most poignant moments of night and life.

Again at eight O'clock, when the dark lanes of the forties were five deep with throbbing taxi cabs, bound for the theatre district, I felt a sinking in my heart. Forms leaned together in the taxis as they waited, and voices sang, and there was laughter from unheard jokes and lighted cigarettes outlined unintelligible gestures inside. Imagining that I, too was hurrying toward gaiety and sharing their intimate excitement, I wished them well.

Q.1 Read the following passage carefully and answers the question that follows. (14)

As you know, majority of the people in India cannot read or write. They are illiterate. This is not their fault. They have never had the chance to learn to read. But we also know that our country cannot progress as it should do if the majority of the people are ignorant and uneducated. If we want to be the best kind of citizens, we must be educated. We must at least be able to read books and newspapers and magazines. Now those of us, who have had the chance to go to school and be educated, have been something of which many of our neighbours have been deprived of. They, therefore, need our help. In this matter we are in a position to help them, if we are willing to do so. We should show our neighborliness if we found our next door neighbor lying at the side of the road unable to move because he has broken his leg. Similarly, we should show our neighbourliness when we find him unable to make progress because he cannot read.

Questions:

1. Why is our country not making progress as it should?
2. How can we remove illiteracy from our country?
3. What is your duty towards your illiterate neighbour?
4. What should you do if you found a person lying injured on the road?
